

This is rugby... This is Gilbert.

In 1823 a Gilbert ball was used in the very first game of Rugby Football - 192 years later it will be a Gilbert ball which kicks off the Rugby World Cup 2015 in England.

Throughout the centuries, Gilbert has been trusted by the Rugby family world wide to produce quality products specifically designed to enhance the enjoyment of the game, for all that use them.

Whilst we remain the Rugby ball of choice for virtually every International team and tournament world wide, our range of other product has evolved to cater for every requirement - we produce boots, body armour, technical clothing and equipment of the highest order.

In what will surely be the biggest ever year for Rugby Worldwide since the game began, we are delighted to offer you our extended RWC 2015 range.

Gilbert are proud to support the world of Rugby Union at every level.

From the World's major tournaments and leagues...

to just about every major rugby playing country.

We are also proud supporters of rugby development.

THE 2015 RUGBY WORLD CUP RANGE

On 18th September 2015, the eyes of "World Rugby" will be fixed upon Twickenham stadium - eagerly awaiting the whistle which signifies the start of ne Rugby World Cup 2015, in England with a kick of the Gilbert MATCH-XV ball.

Aside from William Webb Ellis's decision to pick up his Gilbert ball and run with it at Rugby School, in 1823, • RWC 2015, will be the biggest, most significant event in the history of the sport.

As the official ball of RWC 2015, we are proud to provide a comprehensive range of product covering all participating countries with price points to suit all requirements. Demand for a memento of the occasion will be high.

uite simply it will be "Too Big to Miss".

GILBERT RUGBY BALLS

CREATED PERFORM

Star shape, dual height pimples maximise hand contact with the ball and provides ultimate passing and catching control, whilst maintaining kicking distance and accuracy.
Performs in all conditions.

Designed specifically for Sevens rugby, to assist long accurate passing and one-handed pickups and off loads. Heavily defined star shaped pimples provide maximum grip.

Traditional all-purpose grip, using round pimples of uniform height.

TOUCH PRO GRIP

Multi-height touch grip, for superb handling characteristics required for match play. Technical fabrics and waterproof laminations are combined to enhance the life and performance of the balls.

TOUCH DPX GRIP

specific touch grip, for excellent handling and greater durability.

(air-toc) AIR-LOC BLADDER

Copolymer bladder, for improved air retention and enhanced energy transfer. © ELLIPSE TRUFLIGHT™ VALVE

The unique valve shape redistributes weight along the seams of the ball, to improve rotational stability, resulting in greater accuracy.

TRUFLIGHT™ VALVE

he patented valve design sits securely in the seam of the ball. Provides improved accuracy and truer, longer flight.

REACTION LAMINATE

High quality internal laminations, ensure optimal energy transfer between boot and ball to improve strike consistency.

Kicking machines strike the ball repeatedly to remove residual stress. Ready for match play from the first kick.

IRB IRB SPECIFICATIONS

Conforms to IRB ball specifications.

YEARS IN SPORT

1855-2015

A HISTORY OF 160 YEARS IN SPORT

Grays of Cambridge International, owner of the Gilbert brand celebrates its 160th anniversary in 2015 but its story has been intertwined with Gilbert since Grays first established strong connections with Rugby School in 1868, when Joseph Gray was appointed as the first of 3 generations of Grays to act as rackets professionals there.

Only 30 years before, Joseph's brother, Harry Gray, was setting up in Cambridge, William Gilbert (1799-1877) was the boot and shoe maker to Rugby School. He operated from a small shop in the town at 19, High Street which was later operated by Grays as a sports shop until 2009. By 1823, Gilbert was already supplying balls to Rugby School when William Webb Ellis first picked up and ran with the ball and the game of Rugby Football began. These early balls were larger and rounder than today's ball and could be kicked a long distance. At that time, there was no fixed shape or size as this depended on the pig's bladder used.

The fame and reputation of Gilbert balls had grown such that they won medals at the Great Exhibitions in London in 1851 and also in 1862. By now, James Gilbert (1831-1906) had served as an apprentice to William and was "much loved by the past and present Rugbeians of his time". He was reputed to be "..a wonder of lung strength and blew even the big match balls up tight". When William Gilbert died in 1877, his nephew James succeeded him and Gilberts were stitching 2,800 balls a year.

The sport witnessed major changes in the 1870's. As the game grew in stature so did Gilbert's business. Gilbert started exporting balls to Australia and their export business grew rapidly. In 1890 the first rules specifying size and weight were introduced and at the same time, In Cambridge, Grays also produced rugby balls - primarily for the university who had taken up the game in 1839 on Parker's Piece.

In 1906 just as the RFU were purchasing a plot of land at Twickenham, on the death of James, his son James John Gilbert (1856-1917) took over the family business. As well as his involvement in manufacturing the balls, James John was also an enthusiastic player in Rugby and a keen follower of the game, as was Douglas Gray who was now running Grays.

Following the death of his father in 1917, the last Gilbert to be involved in the company, James, returned from the war to run the firm. James Gilbert was meticulous in everything he did, checking and stamping every Gilbert match ball to maintain the company's reputation for excellence. He wrote countless letters to keep the Gilbert name at the forefront of the game at the highest level around the world. By now, each nation had its own preferences with Australia and New Zealand favouring the pointed (Torpedo) shape and South Africa the 8 panel which offered better grip. In Britain Ireland and France, most Balls were by now of 4 panel construction but 6 panels were still in use including in the England vs France game of 1922. Player pressure resulted in the ball being reduced by ½ inch by Gilbert which led to a change in the rules in 1932. In 1946 Gilbert formed a joint venture with the Glasgow based soccer ball brand Thomlinsons who were responsible for much of the distribution and marketing of the brand until the 1970's. The Gilbert Match remained the ball of choice for the majority of major matches during this time. Meanwhile, Grays took on the exclusive distribution rights for the well-known rugby boot brand Elmer Cotton - for a period.

With the advent of new materials and brands challenging Gilbert's traditional leather business, the brand experienced difficult times and the Gilbert family decided to sell the business in 1978. Grays registered an interest at the time but decided against the purchase. As a result, Gilbert passed through the control of 3 different owners through the 80's and 90's. During this time, the brand embraced and perfected the use of new synthetic technologies in its new Barbarian ball and expanded into wider areas of rugby equipment, footwear and clothing. It once again assumed its market leading position when it was adopted as the ball for the 1995 and 1999 world cups. However, financial difficulties in 2002 led to the acquisition of the brand by Grays and it returned to its birthplace at 19 High Street for a time where Grays operated a sports shop.

Under Grays stewardship, Gilbert, continues to lead the way in ball technology and design, and to maintain the high standards set by James Gilbert over 180 years ago. The Xact ball was used successfully throughout England's successful World Cup in 2003. The Synergie was chosen as the official ball for the 2007, followed by the Virtuo in 2011 and now the new Match XV ball; developed for the 2015 Rugby World Cup in England; is Gilbert's sixth successive Rugby World Cup Ball. A growing number of unions and professional competitions are now choosing Gilbert such as the new European Champions Cup Competition.

Over the same period, Gilbert Teamwear became a major force in the game in the new millennium and has been used by a host of major teams, including most recently the Newport Gwent Dragons, Newcastle Falcons, RFU referees and, the birthplace of the game, Rugby School. Gilbert footwear and body armour has been established as a growing force in the game and has been used by a host of international players. As a result, Gilbert can now claim to be a genuine one-stop shop for rugby.

SIZE CHART

Finding the perfect size isn't always easy. The fit of your clothes depends on many things, including the cut, fabric, styling and even the undergarments you are wearing! By following our body guide and how to measure guide, we hope to find you the best possible fit. It is always suggested that you measure more than once as your posture changes when you move and sometimes effects the measurement you take.

MEASURING

CHEST CIRCUMFERENCE (C)

Measure all the way around - taking the tape approximately 2.5 cm from pit of arm, around the fullest part of the chest. Try to keep the tape level.

WAIST CIRCUMFERENCE (W)

Measure all the way around- taking the tape around the natural waist - (this is the narrowest part of your waist).

Try to keep your tape measure level. Our trousers and shorts are elasticated so there always plenty of room for movement here - if you are confused- Use the hip measurement.

LOW HIP CIRCUMFERENCE (LH)

Measure all the way around - taking tape around the fullest part of the bottom. Try to keep the tape level.

INSIDE LEG (IL)

Measure from the top of the inside leg to bottom of your heel. Please remember you can always take a trouser up if they are a little long, try turning the waistband or sewing the hem.

GENERAL TIPS:

- Measure yourself wearing underwear do not measure over clothing
- 2. Stand straight and keep both feet on the floor
- 3. Make sure the tape measure is kept level
- 4. Ask a friend to help take your measurements (it's sometimes easier to have help)

Our ranges are designed with layering in mind. If you buy a jacket for your body size, you can be sure you will be able to fit a top and a light sweater underneath
